

HEADING SOUTH

Words by Sandy Lindsey | April 26, 2021 | Design & Real Estate

Lured by warmer weather and the promise of spacious residences — not to mention a much more favorable tax situation! — many New Yorkers have chosen to settle in South Florida. The lavish rental units at Panorama Tower are one fabulous reason that lures them right into the Brickell lifestyle.

Although both are major metropolitan areas of their respective states, the lifestyles of NYC and Miami are apples and oranges when you start to compare. When moving to The Magic City, the first thing most people are going to notice as their movers empty their boxes is how much more space they can get for their dollar. Panorama Tower is a great example of this phenomenon. Its expansive apartment units range from 1,134 to 2,191 sq. ft. with unmatched, sweeping water views. The Sky Level corner units are the pièce de résistance of luxury living. These 3 bedroom/3 bath mansions in the sky boast a spacious office/media room that is especially appealing during these times when so many people are working from home. The 300 sq. ft. of balcony space offers outdoor enjoyment without having to leave your apartment. Residents also enjoy a wide array of extraordinary amenities, including three movie theaters, a wine tasting room, a children's playroom, and a state-of-the-art fitness center complete with Pilates, yoga and spinning studios. So, it's no surprise that over the past few months, Panorama has seen a wave of new renters moving from New York: northerners who have long come to Miami for vacation or a second home and are now ready to live here year-round; PanoramaTower.com.
